

International Winter School for Literary Translation

January 30 and 31, 2017

A Literary Translation Winter School will be held at Jadavpur University on 30 and 31 January, 2017.

The Winter School is being organised by the Centre for Translation of Indian Literatures (CENTIL), Department of Comparative Literature, Jadavpur University, as part of Project Anuvad (UGC-UPE 2: Cultural Resources and Social Sciences), in collaboration with the British Centre for Literary Translation, University of East Anglia, and Writers' Centre Norwich.

We invite applications for the Winter School. Students, academics, translators—anyone with demonstrable interest in translation may apply.

The Winter School will feature discussions on translation as well as translation workshops involving Bangla, Odia and English. The workshop sessions will aim to encourage consensus translation of literary texts in groups each led by a Group Leader. Texts will be selected keeping in mind the overall theme of the 'Writing Places' project.

Each group will work together to produce one shared translation of an extract (poetry, fiction or non-fiction), with the writer joining us where feasible to give an introductory reading and to answer questions. Some of the translations produced during the course of the workshop may be published by the BCLT/WCN/CENTIL.

Experts and writers who are expected to participate in the Winter School include Arunava Sinha, Duncan Large, Jatindra Kumar Nayak, Lucy Hughes-Hallett, Ramkumar Mukhopadhyay, Sarah Bower, and Tiffany Atkinson.

Interested candidates may apply by filling in the form attached and mailing it to translationwinterschoolju@gmail.com, along with relevant attachments. The application must reach us by January 17, 2017. The forms may also be submitted in hard copy at the CENTIL office on the second floor of the UG Arts Building, Jadavpur University. Outstation participants would have to make their own arrangements for and fund their own travel and stay.

Successful applicants can expect to be informed of acceptance by e-mail by January 19, 2017. There is no registration fee for the Winter School. Application forms are available from the office of the Centre for Translation of Indian Literatures (CENTIL) on the second floor of the UG Arts Building, Jadavpur University. For further queries, you may contact us on 033-24572156.

Sayantana Dasgupta
CENTIL
Jadavpur University

Kate Griffin
Associate Programme Director
Writers' Centre Norwich

Duncan Large
BCLT
University of East Anglia

WRITERS'
CENTRE
NORWICH

British Centre for Literary Translation

APPLICATION FORM

International Winter School for Literary Translation

January 30 and 31, 2017

WRITERS'
CENTRE
NORWICH

British Centre for Literary Translation

Organised by CENTIL, Jadavpur University, as part of Project Anuvad (UGC-UPE 2: Cultural Resources and Social Sciences), in collaboration with the British Centre for Literary Translation, University of East Anglia, and the Writers' Centre Norwich

1. Name:
2. Date of birth:
3. Postal address:
4. Telephone number and e-mail address:
5. Details of current affiliation and designation:
6. Languages known:
7. Preferred Target Language for the Winter School workshop: English/ Bangla
8. Why do you wish to participate in the Winter School for Literary Translation, 2017?
(max. 400 words)

Contd.

APPLICATION FORM

International Winter School for Literary Translation

January 30 and 31, 2017

9. Details of translation experience (you may also provide a sample of less than 5,000 words if possible)

Signature

Date